Inspire your audience

An inspirational speech motivates an audience to improve personally, emotionally, or spiritually, and relies heavily on emotional appeal. It brings the audience together in a shared desire, builds the audience's enthusiasm, and then proposes a change or plan.

What are the goals of a inspirational speech?

1. Connect with the listeners' feelings, fears, or goals at a particular time
2. Explain why and how the situation is changing or why these feelings may be inadequate or counterproductive
3. Motivate and challenge listeners to adopt higher, nobler feelings, values and goals

Activity - The Inspirational Speech

All students who did not participate in the table topics session.

Select an occasion for which an inspirational speech would be necessary or appropriate. It could be a speech about the importance of doing your best, overcoming failure, a team pep talk, or a commencement address.

TITLE!!

The activity

- Challenge the audience to achieve a higher level of beliefs or achievement.
- Appeal to the audiences needs and emotions and use stories, anecdotes and quotes to add drama.
- Your speech should include what we have learned in previous lessons

IDEAS: Black lives matter movement, #METOO movement, Graduation speech, Unity in a pandemic

Connecting with the audience

To inspire listeners, you must speak to a desire, need, or concern that they already feel or may not have recognized.

What is the purpose of your talk? What message do you want to convey? What are the listeners' backgrounds? What needs do they have? What makes them unique?

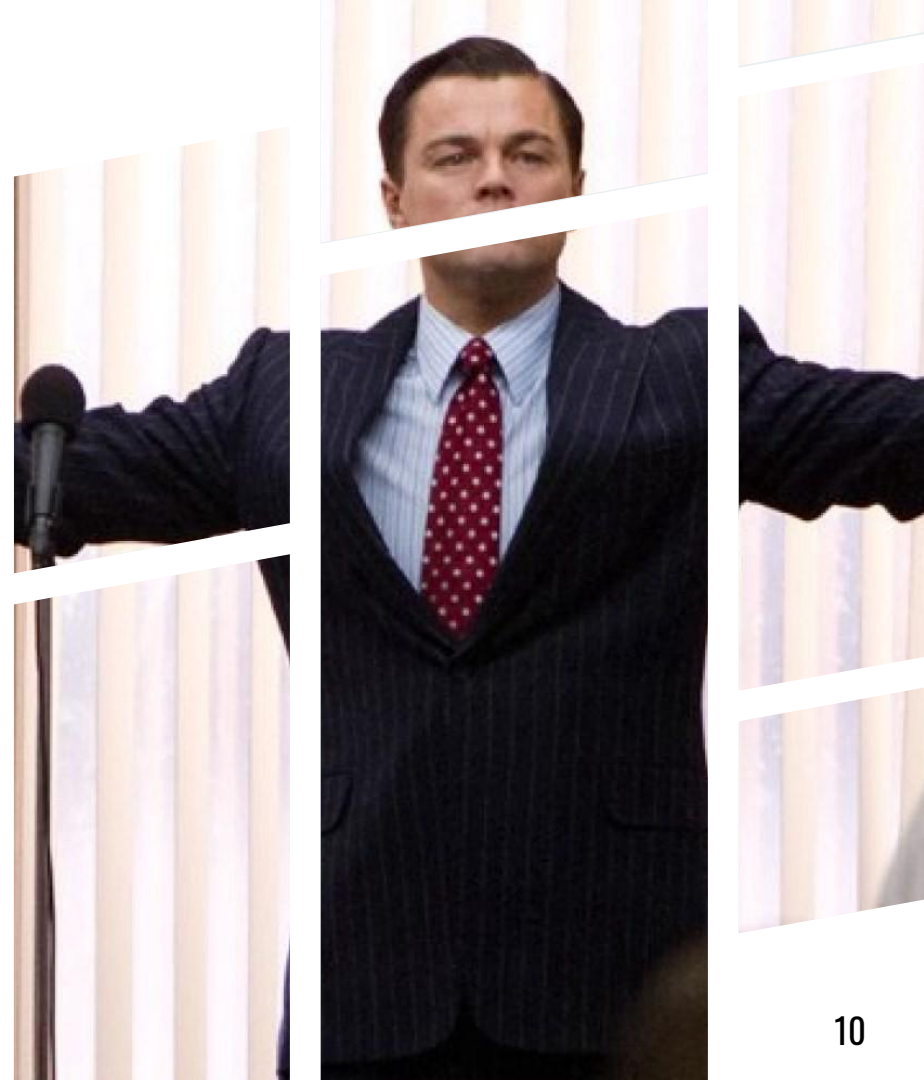

When listeners realize that you understand their concerns, they will remember your message

Changing the Status quo

Your next step is to explain why and how changes will be occurring.

Think about the listers current attitudes, feelings, values, concerns, hopes, desires, fears and goals.

Inspire them!

The last portion of the speech is devoted to the need for change. What listeners can do to bring about this change, and the benefits this change will bring for everyone.

- Mention struggles that will be encountered if no one does anything
- Point out the benefits of taking action

How to say it

You can add drama and impact to your speech if you:

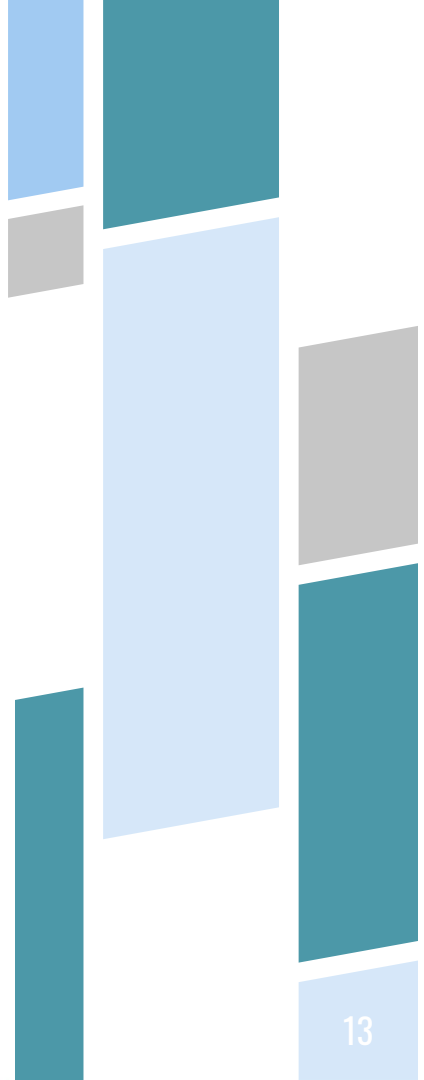

- Use quotes, stories, and anecdotes throughout the speech
- Use language that unites listeners and establishes a bond
- Use vivid words, action verbs and positive words

Think about vocal variety, organization, body language, and visual aids.
